

Meet Adair Gallisdorfer

Adair Gallisdorfer is a mine geologist at Barrick Gold in remote Northeastern Nevada. In this position, she has had the amazing opportunity to study complex and remarkable geology.

Adair is the co-chair of the Student and Young Professional Support Committee (SYPSC), which she is passionate about because of the career-changing support she received from SYPSC and AEG when she was a student. The level of activity and commitment she has found on the SYPSC Committee is truly inspiring. She has been an AEG member for four years, and the Seattle Annual Meeting will be the third Annual Meeting she has attended.

If you have any questions about SYPSC or would like to learn more about Adair, please contact her at agallisdorfer@yahoo.com. To read the full version of Adair's member profile, please see the June AEG NEWS here.
