

NAE E4U video contest

In celebration of its upcoming 50th anniversary, the NAE is launching Engineering for You (E4U), a video contest to highlight the impact that engineering has or will have on society. In the last 50 years, engineering achievements include helping to land astronauts on the moon, creating the Internet, and decoding the human genome.

What will engineering create in the next 50 years? Rev up your creativity, pull out your camera or phone and produce a one to two minute video showing the world how you see engineering enhancing quality of life and serving the needs of society. The video must highlight a period during the years 1964-2064.

The main prize is $25,000, and the contest will run through March 31, 2014. www.e4uvideocontest.org

*****

Greg Pearson
Senior Program Officer
National Academy of Engineering
202-334-2282 | www.nae.edu