

Meet Gary Luce

The AEG Insider is proud to announce, starting this week, that we will feature short bios for one of the six AEG Insider editors or a leader in the AEG community. To kick off the series, here's an introduction to one of the leaders of AEG, Gary Luce.

I am a senior engineer project manager with Knight Piesold and Company in Elko, Nev.

My specialties are rock mechanics, slope stability, seismic hazard evaluations, materials testing and site characterization. I also work on all aspects of mining geotechnical projects as well as civil projects.

My wife, Leigh, is a professional development trainer for science and math with the Douglas County School District, with degrees in chemistry and biology. We have been married for 34 years and have two border collies.

I enjoy rafting, mineral collecting and mystery novels. My wife is a serious quilter. My favorite movie is "Bull Durham," followed by "The Shawshank Redemption."

From 1989-1992, I was president of the UNR AEG student chapter. After graduating in 1992, I joined AEG as an affiliate member. Then in 1996, I joined the association in 1996 and have been an active full member ever since.
