A sign with an ORFEDA logo can be found hanging in the sales office of Galer Farm Equipment – “You can’t do today’s job with yesterday’s methods and expect to be in business tomorrow.” Established in 1950, this is a slogan that has lasted into the third generation of Galers and is one they try to live by.

Galer’s has certainly seen their share of industry change from when Gord Cox started the business 64 years ago, and when his brother-in-law Neil Galer partnered with him 10 years later. Situated on what is now the outskirts of Hamilton, what was one time prime farm land has begun to give way to the expanding city. Seeing the evolving business, they realized the need for more than farm equipment and expanded to include the tools necessary to serve landscapers, construction companies and golf courses, a growing portion of their business.

When it came time for Galer’s to celebrate their 60th anniversary a few years ago, they wanted to take time not only to reflect on their business, but the community that has supported them along the way. An open house, historical tractor show and fish fry were pulled together. Galer Farm Equipment took the funds collected from the meal and was pleased to donate $5,500 to the local food bank.

With the business going strong in its third generation, the Galer family; Wayne and Don, sons of Neil, and their boys, Andrew and John, focus is on serving their customers that continue to come back over generations and priding themselves in the number of long term employees that they have on their team.
