

CA Food Flash CLFP's Weekly News Brief

Attendee Registration Opens September 28 for Food Processing Expo 2019

Registration for Food Processing Expo 2019 opens Friday, September 28, while exhibitor registration is currently open. The Expo, the largest event of its kind in California, will be held February 12-13 at the Sacramento Convention Center. The Expo is produced by CLFP, which recently announced its lineup of Expo educational workshops, offering something for everyone in California's food processing industry.

Food Processing Expo 2019 Workshops. Additional workshops will be announced soon.

- Connecting Technology Innovators with Food Processors: Fresno State's Bluetech Valley Program
- The Top Five Mistakes that Cost Employers Millions
- How to Protect Your Company from Food Labeling Litigation
- Where Can We Hire or Train the Workers We Need to Run Our Plant?
- The Market Growth Potential for Organic Processed Foods
- How to Comply With Cal OSHA's New Indoor Worker Heat Stress Regulations
- What You Need to Know About New GMO Labeling Rules
- How to Choose and Work with a Third-Party Laboratory
- Food Byproducts as a Resource: Novel Research Efforts at UC Davis

Click here for more information about the workshops.

Participation in the Expo – both by exhibitors and attendees – has been steadily growing every year. The Expo brings the industry together by offering a trade show floor with exhibits featuring machinery, equipment, supplies, services and other vendors with innovative industry products. The Expo also features dynamic speakers, networking events and a popular Silent Auction, which raises funds for CLFP's Scholarship Program.

Expo sponsorships are available. Get your name in front of California food processors and allied industry members. Sponsors to date include Agrian, Bank of America Merrill Lunch, Langguth, Silgan, USI Insurance Services LLC and Zenith Insurance Company.

For more information about the Expo, contact Julie Renwick.