UK Students & Faculty

The University of Kentucky faculty and students have been busy this academic year and several of have recently been recognized for their work. Drs. Anne Harrison and Brian Noehren are both first author on two separate manuscripts published in the March 2014 issue of the Journal of Orthopaedic & Sports Physical Therapy. Dr. Harrison is lead author on an article entitled “A Proposed Diagnostic Classification of Patients with Temporomandibular Disorders: Implications for Physical Therapists.” Dr. Noehren is lead author on an article entitled “Assessment of Strength, Flexibility, and Running Mechanics in Men with Iliotibial Band Syndrome.” In addition to these two articles in JOSPT, current third year student, Sarah Martin, has been selected to receive a Mary McMillan Scholarship this summer at the APTA NEXT meeting. This is on the heels of another third year student, Bryan James, receiving the APTA Orthopedic Section’s Outstanding Physical Therapy Student of the Year Award.
