

NABE Research & Evaluation SIG 2019 Call for Papers

We are accepting proposals for short papers (15 mins.) to be presented at the NABE 2019 Research & Evaluation Special Interest Group at the annual NABE Conference, to be held March 6-9, 2019 in Lake Buena Vista, FL. Our SIG theme this year is:

Social, Emotional, and Political Perspectives on Bilingualism

We encourage submission of research-oriented papers which place bilingualism in its social, emotional, and/or political context. Papers may make reference to the current historical moment, such as insecurity over bilinguals' status in the U.S., the emotional toll on families of changes in immigration policy, or the impact of immigration policy and politics at specific educational institutions. Papers might also focus on topics such as self- or other-perceptions of bilingualism, attitudes to bilinguals or bilingualism, prejudice, stereotyping, positive or deficit views of bilinguals, racial politics of bilingualism, and/or language ideology.

While we would especially appreciate research related to our theme, all submissions of data-based, theoretical, and/or pedagogically focused papers on bilingualism, second/foreign language acquisition, intercultural communication, language and technology, or language assessment are welcome.

Please send by email attachment an abstract of 150-250 words and a short summary of 50 words (in MS Word) of your proposal, following the guidelines below to

<NABEResearchSIG@gmail.com>

*Be sure to include the language(s) involved in your study or discussion.

The deadline for submission to the Research and Evaluation SIG is July 1, 2018.

A notice of acceptance status will be sent in August, 2018.
