The National Organization for the Professional Advancement of Black Chemists & Chemical Engineers

Save-The-Date! 2018 NOBCChE Meeting in Orlando on September 17th-20th

Dear Colleague,

The 2018 meeting of the National Organization for the Professional Advancement of Black Chemists and Chemical Engineers (NOBCChE) will take place on September 17th-20th in Orlando, Florida at the Rosen Centre Hotel. The organizers hope to have your participation in this exciting event and encourage you to submit a title and abstract for the technical sessions. The quality of the research conducted by NOBCChE's members and allies has never been better and the upcoming national meeting therefore promises to be an annual showcase for the achievements and potential of minority scientists. This is evidenced by our recent 2017 National Conference in Minneapolis, MN, which featured our 1st annual "Master Scientist" Symposium. This session, co-sponsored with AIChE, focused on the topic of Regenerative Engineering and featured Professors Cato Laurencin, Paula Hammond and Guillermo Ameer. The presence of such accomplished scientists in our technical sessions elevates the prestige of the NOBCChE community, perpetuates productive, collaborative interactions and inspires the rising generation of minority students. We also encourage you to redouble your support for NOBCChE's mission by renewing or initiating your membership (www.nobcche.org). NOBCChE looks forward to seeing you in Orlando!

Sincerely,

Emanuel Waddell, NOBCChE President
