GLOBALJET Launches Major Redesign to Website for More Robust Customer Experience

Navigation features and site design flexibility provides simplified access to training solutions for a growing customer base

AVON, CT, USA: October 15, 2018 – GLOBALJET Services, Inc., a leader in on-location aviation aircraft, avionics, safety, and professional development training, has officially launched its new enhanced website.

This dynamic website will better serve the needs of a growing customer base for aviation maintenance training opportunities. The enhanced design will help visitors successfully navigate their way to locate effective training solutions more rapidly than ever before. Visitors have access to nearly 700 worldwide approved aviation maintenance, avionics, safety or professional development course selections with greater and more comprehensive class details.

This added degree of flexibility aligns with GLOBALJET's core practice of delivering customer-driven on-location aviation training programs ideally suited to meet specific needs of a diverse audience. Customers can access GLOBALJET's website (<https://www.globaljetservices.com>) with their mobile device or traditional desktop computer, using many of today's most popular internet browsers. The new website's added features include:

- Class description expanded to include more details and course specifics
- Cycling "News" area to inform visitors of recent, significant events involving GLOBALJET
- Enrollment options to subscribe to newsletters and schedule distributions
- More company literature available to download or review online
- Immediate access to course overview descriptions while browsing the list of scheduled courses
- Ability to learn more about your course instructor's aviation background and qualifications

To learn more, visit the GLOBALJET Services website at: globaljetservices.com; or contact GLOBALJET via email at sales@globaljetservices.com or phone at 860-651-6090.
