New York Staffing Association Recognized for Corporate Social Responsibility by American Staffing Association

The New York Staffing Association, headquartered in New York City, NY, was recently conferred an ASA Care Award honorary mention distinction. The ASA Care Award program recognizes outstanding corporate social responsibility initiatives—business processes that produce an overall positive effect on society—among ASA member staffing companies, associate members, and affiliated chapters.

“As an organization, NYSA is always striving for ways to give back to the community and society as a whole. The industry recognizes that we partner with the local people in our communities to assist them in their goals of employment, while providing them opportunities for growth and advancement. We need to do all that we can to enhance this bond, and better everyone’s situation.”, says NYSA President Bradley Block of Rotator Staffing.

The ASA Care Award honors corporate social responsibility initiatives that involve employee training and professional development, community engagement, “green” business practices, philanthropy, and more. A panel of corporate social responsibility experts selects the winners.

ASA Care Award honorees will be recognized Oct. 10 at Staffing World® 2013, the ASA convention and expo, in Orlando.
